Comments

When a visitor leaves a comment on the site, we collect the data shown in the reaction form, the IP address of the visitor and the browser user agent to help detect spam.

An anonymized string generated based on your email address (a so-called hash) can be sent to the Gravatar service if you use this. You can visit their privacy policy page: <https://automattic.com/privacy/>. After your comment has been approved, your profile picture will be publicly visible in the context of your reply.

Media

Visitors of the site can download images of the site and view location data.

Cookies

When you leave a comment on our site, you can indicate whether you allow your name, email address and site to be saved in a cookie. We do this for your convenience, so you do not have to enter this info every time you enter a new comment. These cookies have a lifespan of one year.

Embedded content of other sites

Messages on this site can contain embedded content (for example videos, images, messages, etc.). Embedded content of other sites behaves the same as if the visitor visited this external site.

These other sites can collect data on you, use cookies, embed third party tracking, and monitor your interaction with this embedded content, including the interaction with embedded content if you have an account and are logged in on that site.

Duration of storage of your data

When you leave a comment, this comment and the metadata of that comment are stored forever. In this way I can automatically detect and approve follow-up comments instead of moderating them.

When you leave a comment, you can ask me for an export file of the personal data we collected from you, including all data you gave registered with us. You can also ask me to delete all the personal data we collected from you. I do not delete data I am obliged to store due to administrative, legal or security purposes.
